“Increasing awareness of appropriate boundaries”

What are “Professional Boundaries”?

Are you a staff or volunteer that serve clients? Professional boundaries can be defined as effective and appropriate interactions between you and the people that you serve. Boundaries exist to protect both you and your clients.

What you will learn:

- Professional boundaries: what are they and why are they important
- The power imbalance in the professional/client relationship: why it exists & the components that “give” you your professional power
- Exploring innocent situations such as giving hugs, receiving gifts or sharing personal information
- Tips and Tools:
 - Identifying the warning signs or red flags that indicate boundary issues
 - Applying decision-making framework to boundary or ethical dilemmas to facilitate sound resolutions

Who should attend:

Everyone can benefit Professional Boundary Training. Members of the general public, clergy, volunteers, teachers, health care providers, students, emergency service workers, and frontline workers.

Claudia Newman, Principal, NCA Associates

With extensive experience in management, health care and professional regulation, and holding certificates in conflict resolution, Ms. Newman consultancy includes work with health and community agencies, regulatory authorities and school boards.
